What should I tell my doctor before I begin HBO?

Tell your doctor if you have:

- An internal battery operated medical device such as a pacemaker or pain pump. The staff will make sure your device can be used in the chamber.

What is Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy? How does it work?

HBO is used to treat some medical conditions. The treatment takes place in a chamber that you can see out of. You lay on a stretcher inside the chamber. You can watch TV. You can watch a movie. The chamber is pressurized. You breathe one hundred percent oxygen. Your blood carries the extra oxygen. It is taken to your injured area.

How do I find out if HBO is for me?

If you have a wound that hasn't healed in four weeks, ask your doctor. Your physician will evaluate your wound and decide if HBO is right for you.

Can someone stay with me during HBO?

To protect the privacy of our patients, family members may not remain with you during your treatment. A waiting room is provided for their comfort. A trained staff member is always in the room during treatment. You can communicate with them at any time.

What should I wear?

We put safety first. We will provide you with clothing to wear during your treatment. Please do not wear any of the following items when you come to the center for HBO therapy:

- Makeup
- Wigs or hair pieces
- Nail polish that has been on less than 24 hours. You can paint your nails at least 24 hours before an HBO treatment.

How many treatments will I need?

Treatment is different for each patient. It depends on the patient's condition and response to therapy. Most patients receive between 30 and 40 treatments.

How long does a treatment last?

Treatment will last about 2 hours. You will receive one treatment a day, Monday through Friday. Your doctor will tell you if you need more than one treatment a day.

What should I expect before treatment?

The HBO technician will take your vital signs and listen to your lungs. The inside of your ears will be examined. You will be asked about your pain. If you have diabetes, your blood sugar will be checked. Safety checks will be done before each treatment.

Is HBO painful?

HBO is not painful. At the beginning of your treatment you may feel pressure in your ears. Like when you fly in a plane or drive up into the mountains. You may have to clear your ears. The HBO staff will instruct you on methods for clearing your ears:

- Swallow
- Yawn
- Open and close your mouth
